CHANGING THE CAPITOL.

Three Additional Terraces—A Million Dollars to be Expended in Their Construction.

WASHINGTON, August 14.—Every day when there is not rain you can hear the sound of hammer and trowel at the Capitol building. We heard of having a fine building in the world, and it is probably true, yet the work of improving it goes steadily on. The Senate at last seems to spend a million dollars on the construction of a terrace between the three front of the Capitol, for the Capitol is not to be improved, but a front on every side.

The object of this expenditure is to bring the Capitol up to the level of the city, and to give some additional room for storage of the Capitol's records. It is true that the height is seventy feet, but the length is 175 feet, and the width 125 feet, and the area of the terrace is 21,875 square feet.

CLEVELAND AFTER THE ROBBERIES.

The Blasted Syndicates.

For many years this country has grown under the baneful influence of giant railroad and land rings, or syndicates, which have taken and held possession, under one pretext and another, of the immense domain west of the mountains and on the Pacific ocean. It is nothing to read of a man owning from one to several hundred thousand acres of land in one body. These fellows have a great wealth and influence that they have been permitted to run riot for years and years, and it was openly said that for these reasons no President would ever dare to interfere with them; and hence it is difficult to realize that the strong hand of Mr. Cleveland, as President, has come down upon the robbers of the public lands have been already forced to capitolize their acres which they have fenced in without a shadow of title. Hundreds of thousands of acres have been reclaimed from the possession of unscrupulous contractors. Hundreds of thousands more have been declared forfeited by bogus railroad schemes; and the cattle kings who had for years unlawfully occupied the public immense needs the Indian reservation have been ordered out and are going.

There are Democrats as well as Republicans engaged in these great schemes, and they have therefore been encouraged, or not, as they see fit. The Government, because it is claimed that no President dare to defy their enormous wealth and influence. But herein, the people can begin to see some good resulting from a change from Republican to Democratic control. These corrupt syndicates had grown up under the Republican rule, and they were strong enough to hold that party by the throat. Such conditions of affairs are liable to grow up under any party, but under Democratic power, and if no change is made to clear them up. Hurray for Cleveland.

Two illustrations of how men are not "let well enough alone" are given by a Texas exchange. One was where a large landholder owned a 600,000-acre tract adjacent to a railroad company. He was offered $100,000 for it. He wanted only six cents at the next trial. The other case was of a man who had a large tract of land. He wanted the same day and was married.

Capt. Samuel Donaldson of Nashville, who was an applicant for the position of chief of inspectors has withdrawn his papers for that office and is now making an active canvass for office as doorkeeper of the next house. His friends think there is no doubt about his election.

The Georgia Legislature has a bill before it, which will in all probability become a law, to compel insurance companies to pay full for fire risk. They are to pay premiums and to assess the property before a fire and not after.

THE RIVER AS A REGULATOR OF RATES.

The question is sometimes asked why the government should expend several million dollars a year in improving the navigation of Western rivers when so small a proportion of Western freight is carried on them. Freight boats on the great rivers of the West carry five times as much produce and merchandise as the railroads, and what is the answer to this? The answer is that the river is the answer to the question. The river is the answer to the question. The river is the answer to the question.

Air-Ship in Paducah.

A Cairo, Ill., special to the Globe-Democrat says: "It is not improbable that the first balloon flight of the year will be made in Paducah, Ky., on Monday, August 13th. The flight will be made by a large airship, and it is expected that it will be a great success."

Will Wales be King?

An esteemed Philadelphia correspondent writes: "There is a great deal of talk in London about the possibility of Wales becoming a kingdom. It is a very interesting question, and it is one that is being discussed in the most serious manner."
